TWO-TIME FROST AND SULLIVAN RECIPIENTS

At this week's Frost & Sullivan event in San Francisco, Esnatech's CEO/CTO Mohammad Nezarati was officially awarded the Frost & Sullivan award for Innovations on Presence technology. This award is very symbolic of Esnatech's Market Leadership in innovation for Unified Communications, as it is the second time in three years that Esnatech has been recognized as an industry leader for Unified Communications technology.

In 2006 Frost & Sullivan awarded Esnatech with the Innovations award for Enterprise technology when most others were trying to understand what it was, and would mean to the industry. Esnatech is a leader in innovation because of their wide scope customers in both size and industries. Esnatech delivers market leading UC platforms for some of the industries market leading IP telephony providers, allotting them a wide range of input and experience in scalability, interoperability, and applications delivered in a simplified form that enables easy market acceptance.

These two awards in the past three years is a testament to those facts and provides well deserved recognition for the work Esnatech does, and the innovation they deliver to the Unified Communications industry.
